

VORTEX HEALING® Energetic Therapy

VortexHealing is an energetic healing art from the Merlin lineage that works solely with divine light and consciousness. It derives its name from a particular energy-vortex that is the interface between our physical world and a special divine healing realm that is accessed in this art. This healing realm is one of the factors that makes VortexHealing unique, for the practitioner can channel not just a very powerful healing energy—the divine energy and light of the Vortex—but also the consciousness of this special realm, which is composed of 7 divine beings whose sole intention is to manifest healing. This enables VortexHealing to work very deeply on the physical and emotional level as well as to release the karmic level of issues—they are transformed directly by the divine consciousness of this healing realm. The focus of VortexHealing is not about relaxing the physical or energy bodies, or simply making people feel good. It is about deep transformation. And the power of VortexHealing to create transformation is easily demonstrated by putting a musical instrument in this healing realm for just one minute. The sound of the instrument improves remarkably, even to untrained ears. This has been remarked upon in all articles on VortexHealing (including in Kindred Spirit), because it is quite a shock to hear for the first time, and it is easy to extrapolate from that to what VortexHealing is capable of doing to a human consciousness and to a human body and energy system.

There are 49 forms of Vortex light, each one designed to create a specific effect. For instance, one form of Vortex is full of compressed shakti (charged, divine energy) and is designed to be intensely active so it can energize the system, and so it can move and transform emotional and karmic conditioning. Another form of Vortex is designed to stabilize the system when it is exhausted or shaky, another form is just for grounding, another is specific for inflammation, and so on. Thirty-three of the forms of Vortex are specific to different kinds of body-tissue. And all 49 forms of Vortex can be channeled simultaneously, with each one sent by divine intelligence to exactly where it needs to go. Or, Vortex can even be directed into just the meridian system, which creates more of an acupuncture-like type of effect.

In more advanced work, the student can channel millions of different life-frequencies, as a vibration or essence, in dense or homeopathic form. There is also a special InterDimensional Vortex energy that has the ability to transform the quality of glands, chakras and various energies, such as the kundalini energy. In other advanced classes, students are taught to channel the consciousness of perfect LifeForm, work at the level of DNA, and much more.

One of the most magical aspects of VortexHealing is that, in the advanced work, students can manifest energetic structures and devices from densified Vortex light, constructed by divine intelligence, that will not break down. One can, for example, create structures for weak organs or chakras, or to restructure the energy of a room or a house or office (to manifest particular qualities or enhance certain functions, such as communication). Structures can also be used to mimic the effects of other forms of energy work, or reduce the side effects of drugs, or counteract inflammation or focus healing energy into the center of an emotional “position”. The uses for structures are endless. Structures can even be used to improve the sound of a human voice. In public demonstrations of VortexHealing, if there is a singer in the audience who is willing to participate, she will sing a little bit and then again after a structure for improving her voice is channeled into her (which takes about 15 seconds to manifest). The shock on people's faces when they hear the difference in her voice tells the story of VortexHealing—it's quite magical. The wizards of the Merlin lineage needed a kind of light that could do almost anything. This is the Vortex light, directed by divine intelligence.

The Vortex itself is an immense interdimensional structure, and so it is also a natural tool for facilitating earth-shifts and accessing the immense amount of divine assistance that has become available for our present human acceleration. This is the broader aspect of VortexHealing. In advanced Vortex work, practitioners learn techniques that enable them to directly participate in this acceleration. For example, they learn to open Vortex spaces over towns and cities, to work with the Merlin's Global Healing Grid, manifested on the earth by the Merlin lineage to facilitate the evolution of human consciousness, and they learn to open special energetic funnels so that the divine assistance that is trying to come in has a pathway to do so.

The history of VortexHealing is the history of the Merlin lineage. It began with an avatar (a direct incarnation of the divine) named Mehindra, who lived in India about 5600 years ago. All avatars manifest some particular aspect of the divine; Mehindra manifested the aspect of magical transformation. After his death he organized 7 other divine beings to merge their consciousness and form a special healing realm, and he used his own being and divine energy to form a link to it from our universe—the Vortex. As the source and guide within the Vortex, he took on the name Merlin. Then, in 753 BC, he revealed himself, and the existence of the Vortex and healing realm, to a spiritually advanced man living in England who became enlightened through his contact with Merlin and the special Vortex meditations that were shown to him. This man became the first human Merlin, and he chose to manifest what had been revealed to him as a path for healing and enlightenment. This teaching became the Merlin lineage. (Historically, there were 12 Merlins.) But the lineage disappeared from earth in 1247 AD until, on November 24, 1994, in a rather wild experience, Merlin remanifested it through Ric Weinman, utilizing his past life connections to it.

VortexHealing cannot simply be taught; it must be given by direct consciousness transmission. The "Vortex Wheel," which comes into manifestation in the Heart, is the focal point for the basic level transmission. This is the link to the Vortex and its healing realm. It must be imprinted directly onto the trainee's nervous system, energy system and consciousness, so that a permanent connection is created. In the process, the student's entire energy system is put through an intense "light acceleration" that restructures it to both hold and handle more light. This light-acceleration is permanent. (Only certified VortexHealing teachers are able to create the transmissions necessary to practice VortexHealing. A list of them can be found at www.vortexhealing.com.)

Because all divine lineages are focused on spiritual awakening, meditations are taught that utilize and build upon the energetic foundation created by the Training. These meditations are designed to evolve the level of functioning of the practitioner's energy system, to make it more fluid and powerful, and to bridge the practitioner's consciousness into their spiritual heart.
